A. Belgium has always had a lot more than the faceless administrative buildings that you can see in the outskirts of its capital, Brussels. A number of beautiful historic cities and Brussels itself offer impressive architecture, lively nightlife, first-rate restaurants and numerous other attractions for visitors. Today, the old-fashioned idea of 'boring Belgium' has been well and truly forgotten, as more and more people discover its very individual charms for themselves.

B. Nature in Belgium is varied. The rivers and hills of the Ardennes in the southeast contrast sharply with the rolling plains which make up much of the northern and western countryside. The most notable features are the great forest near the frontier with Germany and Luxembourg and the wide, sandy beaches of the northern coast.

C. It is easy both to enter and to travel around pocket-sized Belgium which is divided into the Dutch-speaking north and the French-speaking south. Officially the Belgians speak Dutch, French and German. Dutch is slightly more widely spoken than French, and German is spoken the least. The Belgians, living in the north, will often prefer to answer visitors in English rather than French, even if the visitor's French is good.

D. Belgium has a wide range of hotels from 5-star luxury to small family pensions and inns. In some regions of the country, farm holidays are available. There visitors can (for a small cost) participate in the daily work of the farm. There are plenty of opportunities to rent furnished villas, flats, rooms, or bungalows for a holiday period. These holiday houses and flats are comfortable and well-equipped.

E. The Belgian style of cooking is similar to French, based on meat and seafood. Each region in Belgium has its own special dish. Butter, cream, beer and wine are generously used in cooking. The Belgians are keen on their food, and the country is very well supplied with excellent restaurants to suit all budgets. The perfect evening out here involves a delicious meal, and the restaurants and cafes are busy at all times of the week.

F. As well as being one of the best cities in the world for eating out (both for its high quality and range), Brussels has a very active and varied nightlife. It has 10 theatres which produce plays in both Dutch and French. There are also dozens of cinemas, numerous discos and many night-time cafes in Brussels. Elsewhere, the nightlife choices depend on the size of the town, but there is no shortage of fun to be had in any of the major cities.

G. There is a good system of underground trains, trams and buses in all the major towns and cities. In addition, Belgium’s waterways offer a pleasant way to enjoy the country. Visitors can take a one-hour cruise around the canals of Bruges (sometimes described as the Venice of the North) or an extended cruise along the rivers and canals linking the major cities of Belgium and the Netherlands.

Making the Difference

My life is the same as millions of others. I'm a wife and mother to two great kids. I work as a sales advisor and spend my weekends pottering about in the kitchen or garden. But eight years ago, my "normal", Liverpool-centred life changed forever.

I've always donated money to various charities. But rather than just giving money, I also wanted to help people face to face, so I decided to look for a project abroad. On the Internet I read about an Indian organization called the Rural Development Society. I knew very little about India, but I discovered that people in Tamil Nadu, the poorest state in Southern India, were in dire need of help.

I talked it through with my husband Paul, but I don't think he expected me to go through with it.

Still, I sent a letter offering my services and within a few weeks received a reply from Manhoran, the chief of Ananandal village. In broken English, he explained how excited they were to think that someone would want to come to help them. My decision was made.

My husband was not enthusiastic about my going there, but he also knew how important it was to me. And, though my sons said they'd miss their mum, they knew it'd only be for a few months.

I booked a flight and wrote to Chief Manhoran that I was coming.

Nothing could have prepared me for my arrival at Chennai airport. The noise, the heat and the bustle was totally alien— as were the surroundings. I got to work straight away teaching at the small local school funded by the Rural Development Society, for six days a week.

Day-to-day life was a total culture shock. With no electricity or running water, everything was exceedingly basic. But despite the shockingly simple life, not for one moment did I regret going. The kindness of the villagers was all-encompassing. In return for me showing them respect for their culture, they gave me their all. My Hindi was awful, but we communicated with smiles, laughter and hugs.

From arriving in a desolate village full of strangers, they'd become my friends. I started to look at the place with the utmost affection. And despite looking forward to my trip back to Liverpool, it felt like home.

I started teaching the village children the alphabet under the tree by the hut. Every day more and more children turned up. It was soon impossible for me to manage on my own. I found a local teacher and we started to share evening classes. We settled into a routine, splitting them into groups of older and younger children — named my Little and Big Darlings.

The day before the end of my three-month stay, I was overwhelmed when 2,000 villagers begged me to stay and continue with the school. There was no way I could remain there— I missed my husband and children. But I promised to be back.

My husband was incredibly proud of how far we'd come, but never felt the urge to visit Ananandal. He and our sons prefer to stay at home and help raise money for the school over here.

Since then the school has got bigger and bigger and now we have 500 pupils. The best thing is that the school recently came second in the annual exams of the whole of Southern India. I've thought about going to live there, but my life, my job and family are in England so I'm happy just visiting.

When I'm back in Liverpool people say how proud I must be of myself. To a certain extent I am. But I'm more proud of my Little and Big Darlings who come to school every day with a smile, desperate to learn. They're the inspiration, not me.

The author decided to go to work abroad because...

1. ...she felt bored with her life in Liverpool.
2. ...she needed to earn money for charity.
3. ...she was eager to help people directly.
4. ...she wanted to see India.

How did the author learn about the place she was going to visit?

1. From the letter of a person living at this place.
2. From the charity fund she was working for.
3. From the Internet.
4. From her husband.

What was the attitude of the author's family to her decision?

1. They were happy and wanted to accompany her.
2. They encouraged her to go there.
3. They were opposed to her going there.
4. They respected her decision.

How did the author feel after arriving in India?

1. Disappointed.
2. Shocked.
3. Scared.
4. Angry.

During her stay in Ananandal the author was happy because...

1. ...she managed to improve the living conditions of the villagers.
2. ...the villagers became her close friends and she felt at home.
3. ...she organized a school with her own money.
4. ...she learned Hindi.

What are the author's plans for the future?

1. To visit her school in Ananandal as often as possible.
2. To stay in England and raise money for the school.
3. To move to India with her family.
4. Not to leave India any more.

The author believes that...

1. ...she managed to achieve success only thanks to the help of her family.
2. ...the hard work of her students should be admired.
3. ...her husband and sons should join her in India.
4. ...it was a mistake to come back to Liverpool.

To Hear a Child

I believe in patience. I live as a volunteer residential counselor in a small group home. These boys have brought joy and happiness into my life; they have made me laugh and made me proud. However, they have also challenged me, made me angry and tested my patience.

Each day we start anew, going about a 30_____ routine. I drive them to school, pick them up, cook for them and help with homework. We spend the evenings 31_____ about what happened during the day. I meet their teachers and study for tests with them. They are the last people I see each night and the first ones I hear in the morning. They have become a 32_____ of my life. I am twenty-two and am beginning to understand the love of a parent.

I could not have come this far without patience. They do not think like miniature adults and it is not fair to expect them to. 33_____ my expectations of them are high, I must remember that so much of what they see and understand is for the first time. First loves, first failed test, first time feeling the need to break away from the nest. I must have patience with them, because there is still a child within that comes out when I least expect it.

This world is a fast-paced, fast food, fast-internet place. 34_____, no matter how fast things move, children will be children. I believe they will mature quicker and with more tools if I am patient. I see it in their eyes. Over time, sad eyes can glisten again, but only if I am 35_____ of the fact that it takes them longer to get somewhere.

I see around them a world that expects too much of them. They come 36_____ too many things that give them too much sadness. They listen to me, respect me and understand reason but not always when I want them to. This opportunity has given me wisdom but only when I was patient enough to hear a child.

There is an established stereotype among foreigners that Russia is a country of eternal frost and snow-covered streets. This is all because for many years foreigners have been frightened by the phrase "Russian winter". But it's not all that simple, Russia is a vast country and the weather in different areas can be completely different. Russia consists of several continental zones. For example, in the north winters are long and harsh, in some places there is lots of snow and temperatures fall below –40 degrees Celsius. These winters are normal, not only in the northern regions of the country but even in the Far East.

Summers in these areas don't even see three warm months out of the year.

The closer you get to the south the warmer the Russian climate gets. In the central part of the country summer becomes warm — even hot — which makes it possible for a good harvest of grain, fruit and vegetables. Winters here are not extremely cold and the average winter temperature does not fall below –15 degrees Celsius. By the way, in Russia the real warmth does not start until the middle of April. And only at the end of May does everything start to bloom and people go without their warm clothing.

Пояснение. Dear Sheila,

Thank you for your message. Im sorry for not writing you for so long. I spent time helping my dad in the garage.

My idea of a perfect weekend is totally different from yours. I prefer doing nothing, just hanging out, reading books and etc. And I usually do it after the lessons when I don't have too much homework. But the idea of a perfect weekend for me is something that stays in your memory for a long time, for example, a trip to the countryside with friends, some picnic or sports, concerts etc. Sometimes I play musical instruments with my friends. We have a sort of band. It is my main hobby.

As I understood, you like books. Who is your favorite author? What genre do you prefer? What do you think about poetry?

Ive got to go as my brother asked me to help him with his homework.

Write back soon.

Best wishes,

Alice

Пояснение. 38.1. It is understood that academic qualifications alone are not enough to succeed in a job interview and get the dream job, as employers always examine the personality of each candidate very carefully. While doing a project on what is important to get a job in Zetland, I found a diagram containing some relevant data that I am going to comment on.

According to the table, social skills stand first among the rest with 36%. Leadership skills are considered relatively less important with only 24%. Interestingly, multitasking skills seem to be less required as they make as much as only 5% of the polling percentage.

The data analysis reveals that teamwork skills, chosen by 20% of the surveyed, are four times as preferred as multitasking skills. At the same time, thinking skills with 15% are three times as essential as multitasking skills. Thus, it is obvious that social and leadership skills are considered paramount.

Although it is quite easy nowadays to apply for a job, as there are numerous job-search applications, there is always a problem of how to make your resume more appealing to employers. To solve this problem, it is important to consult an expert who could understand your strengths and weaknesses and build a suitable resume.

I would like to conclude that the increased interest in sociable skills is quite explainable. They enable to communicate more effectively helping to build, maintain and grow relationships with colleagues, clients and new contacts no matter your position, industry or experience level. (250 words)

38.2. Dreams are cherished expectations and ambitions people realize as long as they live. While doing a project on what modern teenagers in Zetland dream about, I found a diagram containing some relevant data that I am going to comment on.

According to the diagram, 38% of modern teenagers dream about promotion. Getting academic qualifications comes second with 21% of the surveyed. It can also be seen, that only 10% of teenagers prefer their financial wellbeing and it doesn't seem to be one of their biggest dreams.

The polling percentage shows that climbing up a career ladder is almost four times as desired as financial wellbeing, and it is a good sign indicating that teenagers prefer work responsibility over money. At the same time, owning real estate is 3% more desirable than getting married, which is quite logical as one should have a house before having a family.

Although dreaming is always wonderful per se, there are two types of people— dreamers and doers. Most people cannot dovetail both these and that is a problem. Dream without action will never yield results. To solve the problem, a dreamer should pen down their dreams and prepare a roadmap to fulfill them.

To sum up, modern teenagers dreams are realistic and achievable. Everyone wants to live in their own house, have a family and lovely children, be successful at work and afford not only basic necessities, but travelling and exploring the world as well. As it is said, where there is a will, there is a way. (254 words)

Пояснение.

1. I live in Saint Petersburg. As a "cultural capital" of Russia, it is quite a popular tourist destination.
 2. The last trip that I've taken was to Moscow. I went to the Kremlin and other iconic places and enjoyed it a lot.
 3. I believe that travel makes a person more broadminded and knowledgeable. Meeting different people allows you to consider more opinions and positions, other than your own.
 4. I prefer to travel internationally. I am fascinated with different cultures of the world and talking to people who have other views on life is extremely interesting to me.
 5. I usually travel with my family. I think that together we can more easily explore places that are new to us, while having a piece of home in ourselves the entire time.

Пояснение. Hey, Kate. You know what? I've just found two pictures suitable for our project "Watching films". Let me tell you a bit more about them.

These pictures are relevant to our project because there are people watching films. In the first photo there is a man and a woman, they are sitting in a cinema and, apparently, watching a film. In the second photo there is a man and a woman as well, they also seem to be watching some sort of film or a show, but, most likely, in their own house. Obviously, both of these pictures feature couples in the process of watching a film. But there are differences to illustrate our project better. In the first picture the man and the woman are in the cinema, surrounded by other people and focused primarily on what they see on the screen as opposed to the couple in the second picture, who are enjoying the peace and comfort of their home and, seemingly, are focused more on each other than the film.

In my opinion, both ways of watching films have their advantages. For instance, in the cinema people can watch new films on the big screen so that all film effects can be felt completely. As for watching films at home, people can choose films they like, food and drinks they prefer, and time they consider to be convenient. Of course, the two ways of watching films have disadvantages too. For example, there are another people in the cinema and they can be annoying. Meanwhile, TV set has less technological opportunities than professional cinema equipment.

As for me, I prefer watching films in the cinema. I really love the atmosphere of the cinema and I adore watching films with 3-D effects.

So, shall we use these photos in our project? Call me when you're ready to discuss if we can use them. Bye-bye.
